They spent many nights on the fugitive's trail, and on one occasion blick were confident that he was within their grasp on Francisco-street, where it was said he had been secreted, waiting for a friendly vessel to take him beyond the reach of his pursuers. They were not mistaken. Harris had been on the street, and had taken a new departure in the escape business, only a few hours before the detectives appeared at his camping ground. Last Monday they had their arrangements made to arrest him, but the missing link in their chain of information was not furnished. In the meantime, the great and mighty Chief, Operative of the Secret Service Department of the United States visited Sult Luke City, and returned again without the prize. On the second day of the trial of Captain Clarke. Officer McDermoth received information of some of Harris' movements, and he followed him up until the arrival of the Quana Se, from China, when he was informed by one King, quartermaster of the steamer, that he met Harris in Yokohama, and had a conversa tion with him. King is an intimate friend of McDermott, and while the latter considered the story highly improbable, it shook his confidence to some extent on the information that he had already received. McDermott informed the proprietors of the Post, that if the reward was increased to $1,000, the man Harris could be got. He considered that anim would cover his expenses to Yokohama and back. No answer was given to this proposition until yesterday afternoon; but McDermott was not aware of the conclusion reached by the ship P Post proprietors, when the arrest was made. nor was the additional enm offered him. (Pal., Mall Gazetts,) An article appeared in the Tintes of November st. headed as above, so calculated to mislead the public mind with regard to the probable origin of this collection, and the adoption of liberal policy in the Chinese Government supposed to be evidenced by it, that something by wavof correction or qualification is much neede The writer commences by observing that such a collection; under official auspices, may be re garded with all the more satisfaction as a neoof. that " the Chinese Government has thought it and sometimes is, valuable, but can hardly be worth while to add its contribution to the specimens of international industry collected there for display," and should be welcomed as an in dication of a desire to change its uncongenial policy towards foreign nations, "a good omen for the future," and a further evidence of a growing disposition "to enlist herself on footing of equality in the ranks of the international comity." We are very sceptical on all these points, and doubt whether there was any. thing spontaneous in the decision ultimatel taken to allow their funds to be employed for this purpose under the direction to the Inspector-General of Maritimo Customs. From the Customs, doubtless, the money was drawn, and Mr. Hart backed, it may be, by suggestions from the German and other legations -was almost certainly both the originator and prime mover in the whole matter. The Tsung-li-Yamen may contain in Prince Kung and Wenseang members capable of apprecia ting the policy of giving such signs of goodwil to foreign Powers at a certain cost. But th promise of an important future under the educating influences of enlarged experience and the humanizing effects of commerce, wit friendly intermixture of international courtesies -according to all the best and most recent information from Peking is vet a thing to be hoped for, very far from being near realization. What steps have hitherto been taken in liberal direction—anch as the founding of college for teaching foreign languages and science, the lighting and buoying the coasts with all the newest improvements, and more recently the establishment of stations for metereological-observations; and the transmission by telegraph from purt to port muy all be traced to the same source, and betokens nothing more than the beneficial influence, even on a retrograde Government of an ever increasing revenue in the hands of an able and honest administrator. It may be right not to be impatient by their past and present history. ference being that the defendant had subscquently recognized a photograph of Captain Fraser when it was shown him by Mr. Greenwood, the regimental tailor at Canterbury, and had so, inter alia, convinced Mr. Greenwood of his identity. A third witness was Mr. Shaw, who was recalled to prove that the Messrs. Armstrong were never employed by the London-Dooks . Company - to construct hydraulic machinery for them before the year 1852; and so, incidentally, to contradict a witness who had sworn that he had made the acquaintance of Arthur Orton before 1852, and while he was working for the Messrs. Armstrong at the London Docks. Evidence of this kind may be, described as interesting. Indeed, rebutting evidence is so much confined to matters of detail, that its full import is seldom clear, except to those who have followed the case ab initio, and have into the bargain, made copious notes of it.

Five other witnesses were called, who were all connected in some way or other with the great business of hoolmaking, and who all gave evidence of an exasperatingly technical obstracter. It is, we need hardly remind our readers, a point for the defence that the defendant's feet and hands are singularly nest; and small, and that Arthur Orton had abominably large, unwieldy, "splaw" feet; and to support this suggestion a Mr. Yates, a bootmaker of Wapping. was called as one of Dr. Kencaly's witnesses who produced a gigantic pair of lasts, enlarged persund there with patches of leather, which were, he declared, the very lasts from which he had made young "Bullocky's" boots. For the prosecution it was, a c. nira, contended that Arthur Orton's feet, although large, were yet not abnormally large, but only such as might be reasonably expected to accompany his bulk; that the defendant's hunds, and feet, 'although they look small by contract with his large proportions, are really far from undersized; and hat there is no evidence to show that Rover Pichborne's hands or feet were peculiarly deicate or dimunitive, Accordingly, Mr. Hawkins put into the box, first, Mr. Luke Jef -. frev. manager to the firm of Messrs. Mr. Yates, it may be remembered, declared that the lasts in question, rivets, patches, and all, were in exactly the same condition as they were when last used for the construction of young "Bullocky's" boots. evidence in the cause eclibre of "Tichborne v. Lushington." It may be remembered that Dr. Kenealy, when dealing with the tattoo-marks, leclared his belief that the whole story told by Lord Bellaw, and supported by the Tichborne family, was an afterthought, and that there was no idea, no suggestion, that Rager Tichborne had ever been tutteded until, in the course of the defendant's cross-examination by Sir John Joleridge, it was discovered that he (the defendant) was not tattooed. Then it was, arged Dr. Kenealy, that the tale about tattoo marks, of which no one had previously heard, notwithstanding Roger's frees of drawing tattoo. milita upon himself with wind paint, first took tangible form and substance: then, it was that Bowker-always, at his "tricks"-wrote to Bellew, then it was that "the tittou conspiracy" was definitively organised. It may be remembered, indeed, that Dr. Kenesly even went so for as to assert that when Sir John Coloridge asked the detendant whether he the defendant) had ever been tattooed Sir John) had not a word in his brief bout Lord Bellew and the tattoo-marks on Roger Tichborne's arm; that Mr. Huwkins thereapon rose at once, and declared the statement to be "utterly untrue;" that Dr. Kenraly picked up the glove; and that one of those pleasant little interludes followed which have done so much to relieve the other wise inevitable monotony of the Tichborne case. Now Mr. Davis was present throughout the whole of the last trial; and he was accordingly, after the austomary legal objection had been taken and argued, asked whether Dr. Lipscombe, of Alres ford, bad not been examined on behalf of the present defendant at the last trial, during the month of May, and before the defendant himself was examined, and whether he had been cross-examined as to the presence of tattoocourse, answered the questions in the affirmative. He was not cross-examined by Dr. Kenealy, and with him-for the present, at uny rate-onds the list of Mr. Hawkins' rebutting witnesses.

Mr. Hawking then rose, and applied for an adjournment until Monday fortuight. The evidence of Luie, he stated, had about it all the ceeded to New, York on behalf of the Crown had been lost in the matter; and he (Mr. Hawkins) claimed the adjournment as a matter of right. A purely formal show of opposition was journment was granted. Mr. Frayling made the quatomary proclamation; the one bundred and twenty-seventh day of the great Tichborne case was at an end; and the growd which had filled the court slowly melted away.

With the exception of such evidence as he may of may not call to rebut the evidence of Luie, the case put forward by Mr. Hawkins on behalf of the Orown is at an end, and the Tichborno trial is victually over. As everybody knows, Dr. Kenealy, when the last of Mr. Hawking a rebutting withesaes leave the box, will have the right of "summing up" the case for the defence; Mr. Hawking will have the right of reply upon the whole case; the Beach will then sum up; and so, finally, the whole matter will be in the hands of the jury. Mr. Hawking intimates that, when his rebutting evidence does arrive from America, it will take very little time. It is a hibit of Mr. Hawkius to fulfil his promises. But, beyond this minor point, it is really idle to speculate upon the number of weeks which this great "deliverance between our Sovereign Lady Queen and the

ENGLISH AND CHINESE DICTIONARY PUNTI AND MANDARIN PRONUNCIATION. An Anglo-Chinese Dictionary, published at the Daily Press Office, Hougkong.

HOR comprehensiveness and practical service this Work stands unrivalled. All the new words which the Chinese have of late years been compelled to coin to express the numerous objects in machinery, photography, telegraphy, and in science generally, which the rapid advance of foreign relations has imposed upon them, are bore given in exteno. Each and every word is fully illustrated and explained, forming exersises for students of a most instructive nature Both the Court and Punti pronunciations are given, the accents being carefully marked on the best principle hitherto attained. The typography displays the success of an attempt to make the Chinese and English type correspond in the size of body, thereby effecting a vast economy of space, achieving a clearness not previously attained, and dispensing with those vast margins and vacant spaces which have beretofore characterized Chinese publications. To illustrate the vast scope of the work, the following facts are submitted for consideration. Chalmers' Vocabularly contains about 16,000 Chinese characters, and Medburst's English and Chinese Dictionary about 100,000, whilst this work contains more than 50,000 English words, and upwards of 600,000 Chinese characters. Again, despite all the grammare and other elementary works as yet published, the SKINS, OOATINGS, TWEEDS, &c., they TOHN SKINKER, SAN FRANCISCO, student of this difficult language absolutely re- keep on stock, to solicit orders to be taken by quires examples to display the various applications and equivalents of liferent words which have one general meaning.
